

Staff,

I appreciate all the efforts to keep our students learning at this time. Our parents are also thinking about how to best support their children in this area, and we have asked for patrons to wait for our guidance. The phone lines are flooded, and we need to keep them open for emergency purposes.

As an administrative team, we are collaborating to coordinate all messages. Anytime, and most importantly in times like this, common messaging impacts the level of "calm" we all feel. With that said, please refrain from posting on any social media platforms, Schoology, etc. unless directed. Some of you have shared some amazing "things to do at home" lists such as read a book, take a walk, etc. I will have our technology department grab some of these and post to our district page where all information will live.

At this time, please do not request homework be completed for your courses. Tomorrow, after food, supplies, etc. are in place, our team will send a common message as to how this will be handled district-wide. If our attention is turned elsewhere due to necessity, this guidance might come later.

Again, I appreciate your dedication to our students, families, and learning and are grateful for your collaboration in terms of sending common messages.

Take care,

Chris
